So help your God." And so twelve men solemnl stand up one after the other and "kiss th	e book," looking at the prisoner in Ireland; and looking down invariably in England. Thes	e l words "according to the evidence" how much hangs upon them, and how much has our ex	h perionce told us that sometimes the very personal who could give us the best evidence is silen	20. .
and incapable of giving evidence? The law of evidence in England is founded up in very goo	f I and sensible rules; it is only defective when it is applied to persons whose evidence is exclude	it altogether. Of late years the opinion ha	H gained ground that everybody connected with case should be permitted and be compellable t	0 applying their common sense to the question of the credibility of the respective witnesses.	\mathcal{A}

The Common Law Procedure Acts exclude from the witness-box certain plaintiffs and de-	9•:

Mr. Denman goes further than this, he proposes that husbands and wives shall be con	m² petent and compellable witnesses in the I voice Court against each other. The eviden	CB.
